THE DISCOVERY OF A LIFETIME--A DREAM THAT CAME TRUE

Story of "Thornless Beauty"

World's First Recorded Hybrid Tea Rose Without a Thorn!

For centuries it has been every Floriculturist's dream to grow a hybrid tea rose without a thorn. Now this dream has come true and every flower lover can grow this wonderful Rose in their garden. It was in 1937 when Nicholas Grillo, Floriculturist, Milldale, discovered this offspring (so called a Sport by Floriculturists) of the "Better Times" rose. In 1938 while only about a dozen plants were under experiment in Grillo's greenhouse at Milldale, a newspaper reporter from the Southington News visited the greenhouses and noticed this new rose along with other new roses under experiment. Mr. Grillo did not wish to make any public release at that time until he had a larger quantity of bushes growing, but it was such sensational news for this reporter that without Mr. Grillo's releasing the news it came to the attention of the Associated Press, International news service and the Radio Broadcasting services. The release of this news by the reporter to these services surprised Mr. Grillo with front page publicity and coast to coast radio broadcasts of this amazing development in the world of Floriculture. Right after this many newspaper and magazine representatives with their photographers and writers crowded Mr. Grillo for details concerning the discovery of the rose without a thorn, and from these releases the "THORNLESS BEAUTY" appeared in all the newspapers and magazines throughout the world. Unfortunately when this rose reached the stage of large production where it could be disseminated throughout the world, World War II broke out. Then due to the shortage of skilled labor and material to produce enough stock for all flower lovers, no large quantities were disseminated. Since the end of the war, production of large quantities has been done and this year Mr. Grillo can offer this Beautiful Rose without a thorn. The "THORNLESS BEAUTY" rose offers exceptional beauty, luxurious petalage, a fine rich red color, also as its name indicates, the unique fact of no thorns that all flower lovers dreamed of in a rose. This rose has proven an excellent garden variety and it should have a place in the heart of every rose bed.

A ROSE IS A ROSE

(Only as long as it's cared for properly)

YOU CAN BECOME AN EXPERT AND
ENJOY MORE BEAUTIFUL BLOSSOMS
BY LEARNING THESE SIMPLE RULES
FOR THE CARE OF ROSES IN YOUR HOME.

1

USE ONLY SHARPEST KNIFE OR RAZOR BLADE

The secret is in letting roses drink as much water as possible. A long slice will expose the greatest number of cells. Don't use so-called "rose" scissors which bruise cells badly and reduce the drinking area. Remove any leaves which will lie under water in your vase. After you have cut a half-inch or so off stems with your sharpest knife, place roses in water immediately!

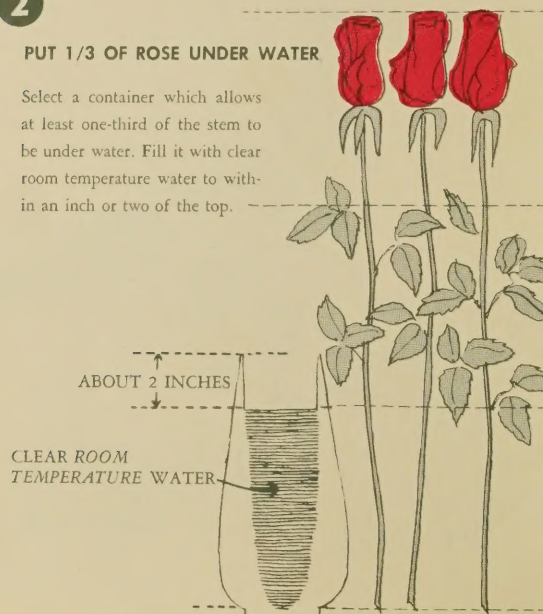

CUT STEMS — REMOVE
LOWER LEAVES — PLACE
IN WATER IMMEDIATELY.

2

PUT 1/3 OF ROSE UNDER WATER

Select a container which allows at least one-third of the stem to be under water. Fill it with clear room temperature water to within an inch or two of the top.

3 FRESH CUT & FRESH WATER — FRESH BLOSSOMS

To keep blossoms fresh, change water and slice off an additional half-inch of stem daily!

FRESH WATER

4

Roses can't stand prolonged exposure to hot sun, hot air, drafts, smoke or gas. Don't expect them to survive under conditions which would make you wilt too!

5

Roses will rest overnight if you lower their temperature. They can stand gradual temperature changes down as low as 35 degrees F.

IT'S COOLER NEAR THE FLOOR BUT SHIELD FROM DRAFTS & HOT AIR

ALTERNATE FOR STEP NO. 3

YOU WILL NOT NEED TO CHANGE WATER AND CUT STEMS DAILY if you use "FLORALIFE" or "BLOOMLIFE" in the water. Floral "arrangements" are usually delivered with Steps 1, 2 and 3 done for you. Where water must be added after delivery, follow the instructions on the small package of "FLORALIFE" or "BLOOMLIFE". These chemicals scientifically protect stems against stem-clogging bacteria.

WHAT TO DO IF INDIVIDUAL BUDS DROOP OR WILT

Cut TWO inches off the stem of the drooping roses. Immerse the entire rose in room temperature water and leave them there for about two hours. (You may leave the head above water if you wish). A good way is to lay them in the kitchen sink. This treatment will usually revive roses unless they have had too much abuse or have been subjected to extreme temperature variations.

OTHER FLOWERS

Flowers with fibrous, woody stems should have the ends crushed. Those that bleed a milky sap should have the ends seared. But ROSE stems should always be cut cleanly.
